Heaven's Roll Call

D. L. Moody

A wounded soldier, lay dying in his cot. Suddenly the death-like stillness of the room was broken by the cry, "Here! Here!" which burst from the lips of the dying man.

Friends rushed to the spot and asked what he wanted. "Hark," he said, "they are calling the roll of heaven, and I am answering to my name." In a few moments once more he whispered, "Here!" and passed into the presence of the King.

Going to "Bed"

C. H. Spurgeon

The child has to go to bed, but it does not cry because its mother has gone upstairs with it. It is quite dark: but what of that? The mother's eyes are lamps to the child. Is it very lonely and still? Not so; the mother's arms are the child's company, and her voice is its music.

Oh, Lord, when the hour comes for me to go to "bed", I know that thou wilt take me there, and speak lovingly into my ear;

therefore I cannot fear, but will with faith and hope, even look forward to that hour of thy manifested love.

Thoughts of Death

C. H. Spurgeon

History tells us of Peter Waldo of Lyons, who was sitting at a banquet as thoughtless and careless as any of the attendees, when suddenly one at the table bowed his head and died. Waldo was startled into thought, and went home to seek his God. He searched the Scriptures, and, according to some, became a great helper, if not the second founder of the Waldensian church, which in the Alpine valleys kept the lamp of the Gospel burning when all around was veiled in "night". A whole church of God was thus strengthened and perpetuated by the influence of death upon a single mind.

Each hour my pulses, like soft drums.
Beat my approach, dear
Lord, to thee;
If quick or slow my marches be,
Ere long I shall sit down by Thee.

Looking Forward to Heaven

Bill Brinkworth

Absolutely no one will escape the one part of life that is scary to many: death (unless the rapture occurs first, and the person is saved!). Because of the uncertainty, everyone, at one time or the other, wonders what happens when their body dies?

For the born-again child of God there is hope and a promise for life after death (II Corinthians 5:2). The Bible does not mention, as some cults teach, that when one dies they are like a dog; and when they breathe their last breath, that is it. Death will not be the end of it, because everyone has a soul that will live forever. It will live forever in either heaven or hell.

Because of God's promise about heaven many "groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven:" (II Cor. 5:2). Paul was busy for the Lord while he was here on this earth, but he was expectantly awaiting his eternity in Glory. So many Christians, while battling infirmities, hardships, and heartaches on this earth, look forward to heaven — a place of eternal joy.

A Christian's Philosophy of Heaven

Bill Brinkworth

Most people, Christians included, have much fear and anxiety about their death. Paul had a much different outlook on his. His attitude was that his life here on this earth was more important to others than to him (Philippians 1:24). He considered death a gain to him, rather than a great loss.

"For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

Philippians 1:21

That is a much different view than those living for the party scene would have. They look

Looking Forward to ...

One of the reasons Paul looked forward to heaven was one that today's believer should also long for. That reason is now we live by faith (II Cor. 5:7), but in Glory the believer will live by sight. Now we have to trust God's Word and not always physically see that its promises are true. One day, however, we will see all the glorious things God has promised come to pass.

With all the positive things to look forward to, Paul, and all Christians, should not be afraid of their eternal future. When our body gives its last breath in this world we may be "absent from the body", but we will be instantly "present with the Lord" (II Cor. 5:8). We have God's Word on that!

forward to constant excitement and a party life. If they could not be partying, they would not be happy. The thought of death and the next life would not be something they would look forward to, as it would be different from what they like.

Self-centered people get their enjoyment when they are the center of attention; when their needs are catered to. They also would fear an eternal future, where they were not in the position to get what they wanted, and be able to run the show.

One seeking political power and money is satisfied when he is running things, and his voice is the one changing the way people live. He would also not be content in heaven, where God is the only ruling power, and His will is the only one that matters.

A Christian, however, should have a completely different view of his eternal future, as did Paul. This life is not our permanent home; we're just "pilgrims passing through". While here on the earth, we have a purpose to be a good testimony for the cause of Christ, and to serve the Lord any way we can.

If we have done what the Bible says one must do to have God's promise of going to heaven by being saved, we no longer have to fear eternity. We can have great peace that the world does not have concerning this matter (Psalm 119:165). We may even find ourselves like Paul, longing for heaven, but happy serving the Lord while we are here.

"For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better:" Philipians 1:23

Thoughts of Death

It is also true that Luther, in his younger days, while walking with his friend Alexis, saw him struck to the ground by a flash of lightning. His experience worked in his heart to urge him to study and examine the doctrine of justification by faith. This studying helped him to be the liberator of Europe from papal bondage.

How much we owe to this weighty subject! Among the earnest, the prayerful, the holy, many must own that the thoughts of death have brought them spiritual health. Men have been helped to live by remembering that they must die: yea, some men knew nothing of the highest form of life till death aroused them from their deadly slumbers.

"This world is the land of the dying; the next, for the believer, is the land of the living."

— Tryon

How Does the Bible Tell One to be Saved from Hell?

Know that you are a sinner: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" Romans 3:23 Also: Romans 5:12, I John 1:10.

Hell is the payment for all that have sinned. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Rom. 6:23

"Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned:" Romans 5:12

BUT, there is good news! Jesus' death on the cross is the payment for the sins of all that call upon Him for salvation! Just ask Him to save you!

"That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Romans 10:9

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Rom. 10:13

"Our road has a hopeless end, unless we follow an endless hope."

"For the child of God, death is the entrance way to heaven. For the one that has not trusted in Christ's death as payment for their sins, it is the beginning of their real problems!"
