a message from their own intelligence that they think will not hurt feelings, not make anyone mad, and leave them with happy thoughts. Gone in many areas are the God-called preachers that are burdened for the lost souls that are in their midst, and that will tell the truth; however hard it is for many to hear.

The hard truth sowed by many people of God and preachers in my life made a difference. I figured if it changed my life, it will help others also. That is when I started teaching and writing so that people would hear all the Bible says about many subjects. I come short many times, but that is my burden and desire, that more will hear, obey, and live the way God wants them to live.

For all these years I have done my best. I have heard few rebuttals, but those that I have heard, have one thing in common. They say I am wrong, but it never has anything to do what I said or wrote. Often, I hear, "I think you're wrong."

"What have I said that is wrong? Am I missing verses? Did I forget to say something or did I use wrong words? Is my doctrine incorrect?"

The answer I hear all too often is, "No, I just feel you can't be right!"

Well, it matters not one bit what I think, what your friends think, what your "godly" grandmother thinks, what you church assumes, or what you believe or feel. The only thing that matters is what does the Word of God say about the subject?

Opinions are ever-changing and often wrong. Church doctrines are also often changing, many times contradict God's Word, and are often man-made. Only God's "opinion" matters in the scope of spiritual matters. It is His eternity and His Heaven. His rules count. Ours do not if, they are not aligned with His.

If one's feelings, "church traditions", "church teachings", "we've never done it that way before", or popular thinking does not line up with what God preserved for us to know, they are wrong! It does not even matter if a popular TV evangelist or head of a denomination declares it. If it does not agree with God's commandments it is not of God and should be ignored.

So, the next time you feel the preacher, a friend, or even myself is wrong about something, your "I don't agree with you" is not enough. Pray about it. Study what the Bible says about it, and study more about it! Then you will never say "I feel you are wrong", you will safely be able to state, "The Bible disagrees with what you are teaching because it says", and then tell and show them.

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

What Is It That I Said That Was Wrong?

Bill Brinkworth

I have been very blessed since I have been saved. The churches I have been a member of for the last 37 years are good, KJV, separated, Bible-believing churches. From those pulpits, and my own consistent studying, I have learned much about and from the Bible.

After dealing with people for many years, I have noticed a phenomenon that is increasingly worsening. Christians, and those that may not be saved but attend church are increasingly less and less knowledgeable about the things of God.

All the mumbo-jumbo to create "easier-to-read bibles" has not decreased the Bible ignorance in this world. All the increased media presentations of the Bible also have not aided in increasing biblical understanding significantly. Although a positive impact to many, much of television preaching has taught wrong doctrines and certainly has not helped much in getting people to join a local church as God requires.

Although the main responsibility rides on the shoulders of the individuals, as they are to search out and study the Scriptures for themselves, some of the blame can go to many pastors. Afraid to offend people and lose a filled pew seat or financial donation, they filter out what God really wants them to unashamedly proclaim. Instead, they preach

The Word of God Only

There is teaching that is at the crux of why many disobey God, and it has been the cause of many deaths and tragedies since man's beginning. This doctrine insists that the Bible is not the only means of instructions from God to man. In its place, religions add to or interject their own writings, teachings, and traditions. Many even integrate these with the Bible, but still, it only leaves "... a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof ..." (II Timothy 3:5). Watered-down religion or one with non-biblical beliefs does not have the full power that total obedience to the Bible would bring.

Mormonism adds their Book of Mormon, along with some usage of the Bible. Jehovah Witnesses also add their pamphlets and Watchtower publications to their edited "bible." Roman Catholicism adds traditions of the church, catechisms, leadership of the Pope, and other church hierarchy to their own edition of the Bible. Islam rejects the Bible by using their own Quran (although some of it contains some of what Mohammed learned from the Word of God and the Jews). There are some additional teachings taught in some Baptist and Protestant churches. Too many add something; rather than put all their faith and obedience in the Word of God only.

The King James Bible clearly states in II Timothy 3:16 "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness:" The root of the word "inspiration" is "inspire." "Inspire" means "to breathe into." The entire Bible is breathed into by God. His truth is breathed into it. His likes and dislikes, desires for us, and the way for us to live are breathed into the Book that He has preserved for us from man's beginning.

The Bible teaches us all God wants us to know. God was not absent-minded and forgot to add something or had the wrong word recorded. The doctrines within the Bible's pages tell us when we are wrong, and tell us how to live correctly. Adding to the Word of God, or even subtracting from it, negates what God "breathed" into it.

Forty-eight times the King James refers to the "word of God." Two hundred and fifty-six times the "word of the Lord" is mentioned. The same God that spoke to His people in the past breathed into the copy we have preserved for us today. Just the fact that it is called "the Word of God" should make one shudder at changing it or adding other teachings. If God has recorded His Word for us to have today, what business does any man, leader, or religion have in altering or adding to it?

God said in Isaiah 40:8, "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth: but the word of our God shall stand for ever." He promised that we would always have His Word with us. It has always baffled me that folks would believe that their religion's recent additions or traditions could be from God when they were not always with us; as Isaiah 40:8 promised His Word would be.

Today, as God's tolerance of man's sin is nearing an end, we are facing more and more of changed doctrine — just as the Bible prophesied! In II Timothy 4:3-4 we were forewarned, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." More people are changing from pure, Bible-only teaching to adding things as they see fit.

The act of diluting, distorting, or adding to the Word of God is certainly confusing many today. Intellectuals and "scholars" are swaying many to their traditions and beliefs with their different translations, revisions, and interpretations of the Bible.

The key to easily understanding who is probably behind the different bibles is in the word

"confusion." Since "... God is not the author of confusion." (I Corinthians 14:33), it cannot be He that is behind the altering of His Word in the over 200 different English "bibles" written in the last 75 years. Although the count varies depending on who counts and how it is counted, it is safe to say that there are 10,000's of words changed or omitted in the new versions; such as the New International Version (NIV), New King James Version, and ALL other perversions of God's Word.

If one word of the Bible were to be changed, that would be serious non-preservation of God's Word. Yet 10,000's? God is certainly not changing His teachings all the time. As the title of Dr. Mickey Carter's book on biblical preservation states, "Things That Are Different Are Not the Same."

We are to read, believe, and obey only the Word of God. We are not to add nor subtract (Deut. 4:2, Prov. 30:5-6, Rev. 22:18-19) any teachings from His Word as preserved in the King James Bible. If it is done, we will not get God's full guidance and message. God's Word should be the only word that guides us through this life and into the next eternal one! After all, it is His Heaven and His eternity; only He knows all about it!

"God's Word is pure and sure, in spite of the Devil, in spite of your fear, in spite of everything." — R. A. Torrey
